

“This experience is not merely going home but being provided an opportunity to expand myself as an active global citizen. It is an opportunity which is truly a blessing.”

Caleb Wiens

Caleb Wiens comes to the Coady International Institute from Winnipeg, Manitoba. He has spent the last five years here, on and off, acquiring his four-year Bachelor of Arts in International Development Studies. Caleb is now joining the Coady Youth Partnership program in hopes of expanding his practical knowledge in program planning, monitoring and evaluation while also gaining other knowledge through an exciting new opportunity.

Caleb will be travelling to Bungoma, Kenya where he will be working in partnership with Community Research in Environment and Development Initiatives (CREADIS) monitoring and evaluating HIV/AIDS programming. This is a particularly exciting opportunity for Caleb as he spent his formative years in Nairobi, Kenya and is excited to return to the place that in many ways still feels like home.

CREADIS is dedicated to building the capacity of communities in a holistic manner by empowering them to achieve sustainable livelihoods and drive their own development process. CREADIS also promotes collaboration and networking with local and international organizations.
