

“I think it will be interesting and revealing to experience the perspective shift of applying design and information organization to an NGO compared to a corporate institution. I definitely look forward to the challenge and the outcome.”

Debbie Gordon

Over the past 8 years, community and youth focused volunteer opportunities have been the primary occupation for the Toronto based multimedia artist, Debbie Gordon. She has a degree in graphic design and a certificate in Interactive Multimedia from the Ontario College of Art and Design and Sheridan College respectively.

Having had previous experiences in more corporate settings, she welcomes the opportunity to apply her skills to a different cause.

BOFWA provides information and services on Sexual and Reproductive Health (SRH). The approach specifically targets young people who are vulnerable to HIV infection due to unprotected sex, and may lead to unplanned pregnancy, which comes with psychological, social and physical consequences. BOFWA believes that knowledge on Sexual and Reproductive Health and access to such services are fundamental human rights. BOFWA also believes that a balance between the population of the world, its natural resources and productivity is a necessary condition for human happiness prosperity and peace.

Debbie will be working in Gaborone, Botswana as an IT assistant and facilitator.
